

PRODUCT REVIEW BY ADAM WILLIAMS

SOME TWIST FOR YOUR WRIST

No, I'm not pulling your chain

MANY YEARS AGO, BACK WHEN SILVER WAS USED exclusively for currency and English tea sets, jewelers and their rugged clientele were limited in their fashion choices. In those Spartan days of yore, a greasy section of cycle chain or strand of rusted barbed wire often served as the height of metallic accessorizing. Fortunately, times have changed, and we now have a host of silver accoutrements to choose from. As such, let's give special thanks to the skilled team of artisans at Outrider Jewelry for bringing us forth from the Dark Ages.

Take a look at Outrider's Bike Chain bracelet, and tell me you've seen something cooler. It's beautifully crafted from solid sterling silver and polished to a mirror-like shine. Each link is precisely fitted to the next, allowing ample flex and range of motion, just like a genuine bike chain, and it securely closes with one of Outrider's sturdy clasps. As with all Outrider silver jewelry, the bracelet is heavy enough to feel substantial, yet light enough not to become an arm dragger. The best part? You won't have to fret about your significant other appropriating it for herself, as Outrider offers the same bracelet in a scaled-down version specifically designed for the fair sex. And for those golden girls and guys, it's also available in 14k.

Offered in four lengths from 7-1/4" up to 9-1/2", and a price range of $149-$209, (7-1/4"/$99 for the smaller version), Outrider's sterling silver Bike Chain bracelet is a stylish and affordable addition to any biking enthusiast's jewelry collection. Attractively handcrafted, fully guaranteed, and fit for any road king or trailer queen, what's not to love about this great offering from Outrider? Pick one up, and never worry about grease on your wrist again. AIM

SOURCES

Outrider Jewelry
 104 N.Churton St., Dept.
 AIM
 Hillsborough, NC 27278
 800/477-1856
 www.OutriderJ.com